Case Study Reasoning

1. Determine the ethical question you are trying to answer?

2. Provide a tentative intuitive answer to the question.

3. List three or more reasons for this answer.

4. List three facts that support this answer. For example, headless cats do not feel pain.

5. List one or more moral principles that support this answer. For example, we ought not to cause pain to others.

6. Now provide a formal answer to the ethical question studied.

7. Using the factual premises and moral principles listed, construct valid moral arguments that lead logically to the formal answers you provide.

   Write the factual premises.
   Write the moral principles.
   Write the conclusions.

8. List at least one potential objection to your argument.

9. List a response to that objection.
